My dear Campbell,

I think you have read into our note about Banerji, in our issue of the 2nd instant, a good deal more than you were justified in doing. We did not say, or suggest, that he had actually been promised the Dewanship, but that it was "generally understood" that he had the reversion of it. I certainly thought so myself.

As regards Sir Kantaraj Urs, we had no intention of suggesting that he owed his appointment merely to the facts of his being a Kinsman of H.H. the Maharajah and a Mysorean, and I do not think our remarks will bear that construction, unless they are unduly distorted. We have often referred in appreciative terms to his work, and in the note under reference we ~~noted~~ wished him well in the further discharge of his onerous duties.

I cannot, therefore, agree with you that the note was unfair either to His Highness or to Sir Kantaraj Urs - that is the last thing we should dream of being, or seeing to be.

Yours sincerely

H S
